
Preqin Launches Academy for Alternative Assets Education

Preqin is proud to announce the launch of Preqin Academy, a free online resource for students, early-career professionals and market participants who want to learn more about the alternative assets industry.

As the Home of Alternatives, Preqin is committed to increasing understanding of the industry and is keen to share its expertise with the next generation of industry professionals. Preqin Academy is built on almost two decades of alternative assets expertise and data, and offers participants the opportunity to immerse themselves in the world of private markets. It provides them with access to data and tools, such as market charts and analysis, used by Preqin's global network of more than 110k.

Preqin Academy is designed to be an introduction to the industry and includes 'Alternatives 101' lessons across all alternative asset classes, career insights from leading industry professionals and academic papers that feature Preqin data. For participants who explore the lessons and would like to continue with their alternatives education, Preqin Academy provides exclusive partner discounts to recognized institutions such as CAIA and Saïd Business School, The University of Oxford.

"We are thrilled to announce the launch of this initiative," said Mark O'Hare, Preqin CEO. "Our mission is to increase understanding within the alternatives industry, and providing high-quality educational resources for people taking the first steps in their career is fundamental to that. We hope that this will help to make sure that the next generation of industry operators is armed with the skills and knowledge to make the best-informed decisions."
